Location & surrounding area:

Zadar is a north Dalmatian city in south Croatia. It is located directly on the Adriatic coast and therefore is an important port and spa. The historic heart of the city is located on a peninsula which is surrounded by a Venetian wall. Zadar is called the pearl of the Croatian culture and history. As the biggest city of north Dalmatia, with approx. 77.000 inhabitants, it is an interesting combination of urban flair and historic small town feeling, which has way more to offer than simple tourist attractions. The historic city center is an ideal spot to start tours and trips. In the direct proximity there are five National Parks.
